

Denise is an experienced consultant and entrepreneur who seeks inspiration at the “complex and emerging intersections” of strategic change management, human and organizational systems, and business innovation. Denise is the co-founder and principle consultant with Complexity Space Consulting, where her research and practice focus on helping clients build adaptive, innovative and sustainable organizations by understanding and influencing the complex dynamics across their human, technology and management systems.

In 1999 Denise founded Adapt Knowledge, a knowledge management consulting and learning services firm focused on the design, development, and strategic integration of digital knowledge and learning ecologies for organizations.