

Dan Ritter is a multidisciplinary change partner helping clients solve their greatest organization, talent and process challenges. He is currently Senior Manager, Organizational Effectiveness / Development at Driscoll's, where he works with leaders and teams to collaboratively align the organization with business needs. Previously, Dan held a number of business area and corporate roles at Lockheed Martin, with focus on organizational effectiveness, change management, talent management, leadership development and process improvement.

Dan holds an M.S. from George Washington University, a B.S. from Ohio State University and is an active Project Management Professional (PMP).

Peter Ross leads the team responsible for organizational design and alignment at Lowe's Companies Inc. He's an organizational design, change management, talent management, leadership development and strategic consulting professional with experiences in various industries. Peter has strategy and change management consulting experience with PricewaterhouseCoopers and Capgemini, and earned MBA with specialization in Industrial Organizational Psychology from CUNY Zicklin School of Business.