

JONATHAN P. WHEELER

Partner

As a Partner of The Clarion Group, Jon has had a diverse career including multiple technology sales and marketing roles for a Fortune 100 company; he also has been a management advisor supporting large scale business transformation projects in global enterprises, the general manager of a division of a rapidly expanding telecommunications firm, co-founder of a venture backed software startup, and the founder and principal of his own management consulting firm.

Through these varied experiences, Jon has built a rich perspective on how organizations operate and what can make the difference between modest success and excellence. These issues range from strategic clarity to operational execution and in particular the leadership dynamics and capabilities that are most critical to raising performance. He has gained these perspectives from both being on the line as executive and from advising other leaders.
